Day 2 Vancouver

Today is yours at leisure in Vancouver. This bustling metropolis may be western Canada's largest city, but it retains a pedestrian-friendly charm and embraces a love of nature. Spend the day walking the sea wall of the mainland, or perhaps rent a bike and explore the vast network of trails throughout the city, one of the most memorable being the expansive Stanley Park. Trails criss-cross the park through forests and open grass fields that interconnect to a city-wide trail system. The park's aquarium features beluga whales and other large marine mammals as well as daily shows.

Day 6 Tofino

Today, you will experience a bear watching excursion that will take you into the inlets of Clayoquot Sound. You will not only have the chance to observe these incredible creatures in their natural habitat, but also learn about the region's rich cultural history. In addition to watching black bears, you may also spot wildlife such as sea lions, harbour seals, bald eagles, and a variety of seabirds. More elusive, but not completely out of the question, are sightings of coastal wolves. The guides will also share some of the history of the region, including the effects of colonialism and the resilience of First Nations peoples in preserving their cultural traditions and relationship with the land. You'll learn about the significance of the area's old-growth forests, and how they have been an integral part of the region's cultural heritage for generations.
